

Abstract

An electrical closure apparatus is provided for installing in a wall. The electrical closure apparatus includes a front face and a recessed portion to which the front face is formed. The electrical closure apparatus further includes a rear face disposed opposite 5 the front face, on the recessed portion. At least one impression member is spaced from the recessed portion such that an outline is made, at least partially, of the recessed portion when pressed against the wall.